

A 150 sq.m. home built for a newly wed couple. The program for this house may be considered conventional and compact. White built-in furniture, walls and a light finished wooden floor brightens the space and make the room spacious. Entering the house is a sequence of moving through the hallway up to the living room. Next is the dining room and the kitchen that are connected with a small bar that also serves as a pantry. Even the size of the kitchen is small but it still functions as a Chinese kitchen without any disturbance of cooking odors in the dining area. The stair way that leads up to the upper level of the house is always filled with warm sunlight from a bay window. This upper level consists of two small bedrooms and a pyramid ceiling master bedroom.

The program for this house may be considered conventional and compact.

INTERIOR